FOCUS ON THE DEATH PENALTY & U.S. DIPLOMACY

19 / AMERICAN DIPLOMACY AND THE DEATH PENALTY

For a country that aspires to be a world leader in human rights, the death penalty has become our Achilles' heel.

By Harold Hongju Koh and Thomas R. Pickering

26 / THE DEATH PENALTY, AMERICA, AND THE WORLD

Many countries in Europe and elsewhere have abolished the death penalty and are turning up the pressure on the U.S. to do likewise. But foreign views shouldn't control American law.

By Paul Rosenzweig

31 / INTERNATIONAL INFLUENCE ON THE DEATH PENALTY IN THE UNITED STATES

The prospects for profound change in the death penalty in the U.S. are stronger now than at any other time in this important issue's long and controversial history. A new concern for world opinion is part of the reason.

By Richard C. Dieter

39 / THE MYTH OF THE COWBOY

The picture many foreigners have of America as a reckless, gun-totin', cowboy nation that hands out the death penalty willy-nilly is a false one.

By Greg Kane

43 / A DECENT RESPECT TO THE OPINIONS OF MANKIND

America's continuing attachment to capital punishment puts us far out of step with most of "the civilized world."

By Paul P. Blackburn
